NEW from Smith & Wesson®'s Performance Center®, the M&P®10MM M2.0™.

This M&P model features a 5.6" ported barrel, optics-cut slide, optic-height tritium white-dot night sights, enhanced action with flat-faced trigger, and 15+1 10MM capacity.

A long slide with porting in the barrel makes this a more accurate and more manageable 10mm handgun. The M2.0™ flat trigger will give you consistency in your pull, and now with the Performance Center® tuning, you can deliver accurate shots down range. A perfect option for those looking to step up their game.

This company is innovating! I will have this. Perhaps the perfect camping and hiking pistol. I'll put the M&P 2.0 series up against any comparable handguns. Great job, S&W!

Great work putting out different products! Seriously this is how you earn money. If you put out a Carbine 5.7 that improves on the faults of the Ruger 5.7 LC then that right there will be a top seller if it's generous on price.

I like it. I wish you guys would try your hand an 8-10 shot 327 carry revolver. The round is slimmer than a 357 with similar power/less recoil. We have several 8 shot 357s now. Also, ammo for the 327 is making a comeback! Finally! Federal hst hits next month too and hydroshoks are easy to find. Best revolver cartridge ever to me. Great balance all around. Btw Smith, 2.5-3 inch barrel. All black. :)

The base model always comes out first. People who cannot wait buy that. Then the sport/performance model comes out. After that comes the compact base model, which is followed by the compact sport/performance model. After that comes the subcompact or shield model and then I think you know where I'm going with this, but after that they make a sport/performance model.

I've compared the Glock and the Smith & Wesson's M&P and I like the dimensions better on a Glock and they're reliability that I've seen on YouTube when they compare the two and dirt test and everything else. However, I reserve my judgment until I shoot one. It does look nice

This is a beautiful gun, and I love all my M&Ps, especially my CORE Performance center one. My only big question is, why design this gun so it doesn't fit into any competition division where it could actually compete? You'd have to shoot it in Open, but there, you compete against race guns with optics that aren't slide mounted. It ends up making the gun a novelty, not a real competition option.

Got one, like it, but... there should be different options for the fixed sights. Some of us don't shoot with optics. The tall sights are intrusive and makes it harder to use. The mounts prevent changing them with third party sights since they are so different than the rest of the M&P line

Smith & Wesson Inc.'s Post

Smith & Wesson Inc. April 13 · 🌐

As the weather is getting warmer, you might be considering switching to a smaller, more concealable gun.

This compact M&P®9 M2.0™ is a great option for summer carry. Featuring a short, 3.6" barrel, but not losing out on capacity with its 15-round magazine.
